Make the Device Think

Control the unique features of each device. Run intelligent, multimodal applications tailored to suit your operational needs.

A key component of MCL-Collection's thick client/server architecture, MCL-Client runs on the device and executes the MCL application you create using MCL-Designer.

Whether you need batch, real-time, wired, wireless, occasionally connected or continuously connected applications with barcode scanning, voice recognition, or signature capture, MCL-Client gives you the necessary device level control and flexibility to:

- Run applications with multimodal user interfaces
- Provide voice recognition
- Allow different modes of communication
- Support cross-platform compatibility and application portability
