How long does it take for malware to infect your brand-new computer? If you use free or other inferior security software, maybe not long at all.

Cybercriminals are more sophisticated than ever before, and they use a diverse arsenal of tools to gain access to your information. Other security products just don't have the resources to keep up with new threats as they emerge.

But Norton products do. As the threats get worse, our products just keep getting better. Our teams of security experts are constantly analyzing new threats and devising ways to protect your devices from them.

Your digital life is central to your daily life. You post photos. Send emails. Transfer money. Not only that, but your personal network is bigger than ever before, and a threat to you may be a threat to the people in it.

Today's hackers are more sophisticated than ever. Attacks can come from anywhere. Safe-looking emails and phishing websites can steal your login credentials for all your accounts, giving the bad guys access to your entire digital life.
